IELTS Reading practice test based on question types While attempting the IELTS reading practice test, you need to be in a frame of mind of attempting the actual IELTS test. The IELTS Reading task involves three passages that gauge your analytical skills, reading comprehension, and the ability to effectively and efficiently read for the general idea, for the primary point of view, making the inferential analysis of the passages, writer's opinion, and inclination, etc. There are 40 questions in the IELTS Reading task, be it IELTS Academic or IELTS General, and these questions are stretched over a range of questions. Question Types in IELTS Reading It is best to begin by referring to an IELTS reading practice test with answers because you will get first-hand knowledge of how to arrive at the answers. But before you do that, learn the question types that are generally asked in the IELTS Reading tasks. This article covers most of the question types. Multiple Choice questions These types of questions require you to opt for the correct option from a list of options. You might have to choose between 4,5 or more choices and give your response with the letter corresponding to which the right option (as per your choice) is mentioned like A,B,C,D, E depending upon how many options are available. Sentence/note Completion questions In these types of questions, you are required to complete an incomplete sentence following the word limit. You don't have to write the sentence on your own, nor do you need to paraphrase the information. You just have to find the sentence in which the question is a part and complete it as mentioned in the text. Complete the table type questions In these types of questions you are required to complete a table that is provided within the word limit. You just have to find the part from which the questions of the table are asked and then fill in the word that you feel is the most suitable to be written, and that would correctly complete the table. Short answer type questions In these types of questions, you need to provide a short answer to the questions asked. You don't have to provide the answer in detail. Just provide your answers in a short and crisp way within the word limit. The prerequisite for such types of questions is to understand the passage well, keeping the question(s) in mind. Label the diagram type of questions In the diagram labelling questions, you are required to complete the diagram with suitable words depending upon the situation. For this, you need to have a clear understanding of the context of the passage, and then, you need to fill in the spaces provided by using appropriate words upon having searched the paragraph(s) the question is taken from Matching type questions- Matching the sentence endings type questions In these types of questions, you are required to match the initial phrase of a sentence to the most appropriate ending of it. The first step should be to read the question and paraphrase the sentence. This way, it becomes easy to choose the right ending. Match the features type questions You need to match the most appropriate features of a column to a category in another column. It could be a peculiar characteristic given in the passage of a certain group or a feature of a device, etc. You have to follow the passage well to be able to attempt these types of questions. Match the heading type questions In this subset of matching questions, you are required to match the paragraphs given in a column to the appropriate heading mentioned in another column. For example, para A para B could have a heading Malnourishment, Essential nutrients, etc. So your task is to match the paragraphs with the apt titles. The task becomes easy if you understand the central idea of the passages. Complete the summary type questions In these types of questions, the context and the fair understanding of the passage are of utmost importance. Failing to do so would be very problematic for you to infer the passage and come to a conclusion. Comprehending the text well could help you attempt summarizing or completing the summary types of questions correctly. Ensure to write within the word limit. True/False/Not Given or Yes/No/Not Given You have to understand the writer's perspectives and give the answer suitably, keeping in mind the writer's viewpoints. To understand the writer's views, you have to, first of all, understand the writer's opinion and attitude well. Once you are able to gauge the intent and inclination of the writer, these questions become considerably easier.
